

WHAT WE DO

For over 50 years, Alberta's natural gas utilities like Birch Hills Gas Co-op Ltd. have been helping build rural communities.

We built something special here. Farmers. Volunteers. Community leaders. We all worked together to bring natural gas service to our neighbours.

That hard work is now 120,000 members strong, with 82 utilities in the Federation of Alberta Gas Co-ops Ltd. network. Co-operatives, counties, towns, villages and First Nations all co-operating on building Alberta's rural areas through community-owned gas utilities, all owned by the very people they serve.

As a member of your local gas utility, you have a voice. In gas co-ops, have your say in Annual General Meetings or join the Utility Board and shape the future. Customers of municipal and First Nations gas utilities have a voice through their local council. This is your gas utility, your say in how natural gas is helping to grow your community.
